

Cookies Policy

At El Corte Inglés we use cookies in order to improve the service we provide as well as improve your browsing experience. We wish to explain clearly and precisely the following: what cookies are, what they are used for, what types of cookies we use, what purpose they serve and how you can configure or, if you wish, disable them.

What is a cookie and what is it for?

A cookie is a small removable data file that is stored by a user's computer, tablet, smartphone or other device, and contains browsing information.

Overall, our users' cookies help us provide a better website, by enabling us to monitor which pages are useful and which are not, and which ones could be improved.

Cookies are fundamental to the smooth operation of the internet. They offer a host of benefits when providing interactive services and improve the navigability and usability of our website. There is no way cookies could cause damage to your equipment. The reverse is true; they help identify and fix errors.

What types of cookies do we use?

Depending on the entity using them

Our own cookies

These cookies are sent to your device by our own equipment or domains, from which we provide the requested service.

Third-party cookies

These cookies are sent to your device by a device or domain not managed by us, but by a partner organisation. Examples include cookies used by social networks or by external content such as Google Maps.

Depending on how long they remain active

Session cookies

These temporary cookies remain in your browser's cookies file only while you are visiting the website, meaning that cookies are not registered on your computer's hard drive. We use the information these cookies provide us to study web traffic patterns. Over time, this allows us to improve browsing through better, easier-to-use content.

Persistent cookies

These are stored on your hard drive. Our website reads these each time you return to our website. A permanent website has a specific expiry date. The cookie will no longer work once that date has passed. We generally use these cookies for purchase and registration services.

Depending on the purpose they serve

Technical cookies

These are needed for browsing and for the smooth operation of our website. Their uses include enabling the monitoring of traffic and communicating data, access to restricted access areas, placing of orders, use of security features and storage of content for posting videos or sharing content over social networks.

Customisation cookies

These allow access to the service with a number of predefined features that depend on a set of criteria. These include language, browser type used to access the service, settings for the region from which you are accessing the service, etc.

Analysis cookies

These enable us to calculate the number of users and thus create statistics measuring and analysing how users use our services. This entails analysing their browsing habits on our website in order to improve the products and services we offer.

Advertising cookies

These enable us to fully optimise management of any advertising spaces included on our website.

Behavioural advertising cookies

These store user behaviour observed on a continual basis. Cookies can tell us a lot about web browsing habits, which allows us to display advertising relevant to your browsing profile.
